Elva P. Valerius Memorial Chapel

Tracy Dormitory

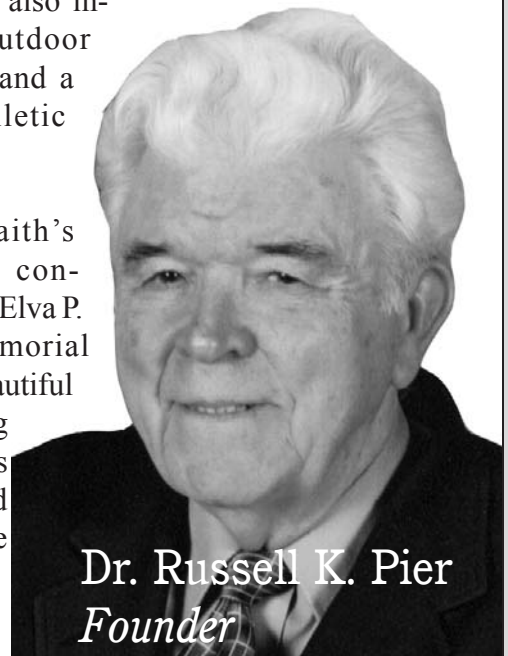

In 1958, it became apparent that an old-fashioned Pentecostal training school was needed in New England. Faith School of Theology was divinely breathed into existence to be a Bible institute like Bible institutes once were. In the fall of 1959 Faith School of Theology opened its doors for the first time. Many miracles throughout the years have confirmed that this is a school God built.

A renovated, three-story rooming house at 88 Union Avenue, Old Orchard Beach, Maine, was the first home of the school. In June of 1967, the institute was moved to a larger campus in Brooklin, Maine. In 1975, the Brooklin facilities were filled to capacity and the need for a larger campus was evident.

A beautiful miracle happened that made it possible for the directors of Faith School of Theology to become the directors of Higgins Classical Institute in Charleston, Maine. The campus is situated in the center of town on fifteen acres of land. It is comprised of the institute building housing ten classrooms, a library, offices, staff and student lounges, and a bookstore. Other buildings include a full-size gymnasium; a four-story brick dormitory; a three-bedroom, ranch-style home; and staff housing including a three-story apartment building, a duplex home, and several mobile homes.

The property also includes an outdoor tennis court and a full-size athletic field.

In 1981, Faith's chapel was constructed. The Elva P. Valerius Memorial chapel is a beautiful brick building that connects Tracy Hall and the Institute Building.
